

Electronic Identification and Data Management

Electronic identification (EID) of livestock is becoming more common as its benefits in livestock identification, management and biosecurity and becoming more well known within industry.

Cousins Merino Services works with research organisations, technology companies and producers to ensure we are up to date with the latest technology and its applications to our clients. We also act as re-sellers for electronic tags and equipment. Please contact us with any queries regarding the usage of EID in your livestock operations, we can capture individual EID when pregnancy scanning or wool testing and work with clients with incorporating body weights and fleece tracking.

We offer a data management service, collating information and providing reports, including Rampower and assistance with Lambplan and MerinoSelect. An example is provided below;
